Hon. Beverly Reid O'Connell

PLAINTIFFS' EX PARTE
APPLICATION FOR CLARIFICATION OF ORDER; OR,
IN THE ALTERNATIVE, FOR AN EXTENSION OF TIME TO AMEND THE COMPLAINT AS TO DEFENDANT BAI

[Filed Concurrently with Declaration of George E. Mastoris; and [Proposed]
Order]

1 TO THE COURT, DEFENDANTS AND ALL ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

2 PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that pursuant to Local Rule 7-19 Plaintiffs Harmoni
3 International Spice, Inc. (“Harmoni”) and Zhengzhou Harmoni Spice Co., Ltd.
4 (“Zhengzhou Harmoni”) (collectively, “Plaintiffs”) hereby request clarification from 5 the Court regarding its order on Plaintiffs’ Motion to Alter or Amend or, in the 6 alternative, request that the Court extend the time for Plaintiffs to file an amended 7 complaint as to Defendant Wenxuan Bai (“Bai”). This request is made on an ex parte
8 basis due to the pending deadline to file any amended complaint on or by February 27, 9 2017. See ECF No. 183 (Stipulation for Extension of Time); ECF No. 181 (Court’s 10 Order on Plaintiffs’ Motion to Alter or Amend, or the “Order”).¹

11 Good cause exists to grant this ex parte request. In particular, although the 12 Court’s Order utilizes language characterizing its prior order granting Defendants’
13 Motion to Dismiss Plaintiffs’ Second Amended Complaint (“Dismissal Order”) as a 14 “final judgment on the merits” for purposes of considering Plaintiffs’ Motion to Alter
15 or Amend under Fed. R. Civ. P. 59, Plaintiffs understand that there is currently no 16 final appealable judgment under Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b) because the Dismissal Order, 17 ECF No. 163, adjudicated fewer than all of the claims and the parties, including, for 18 example, those claims as to Defendant Bai, which were dismissed only on the grounds 19 of improper service of process and without prejudice. See Dismissal Order at 35; Fed.
20 R. Civ. P. 54(b) (“[A]ny order or other decision, however designated, that adjudicates 21 fewer than all the claims or the rights and liabilities of fewer than all the parties does 22 not end the action as to any of the claims or parties and may be revised at any time 23 before the entry of a judgment adjudicating all the claims and all the parties’ rights 24 and liabilities.”). While acknowledging the clear language of Rule 54(b), in an 25 abundance of caution, Plaintiffs seek the Court’s clarification that its Dismissal Order 26 was not a final appealable Order within the meaning of Rule 54(b).

27 ¹ The Order originally contemplated a deadline of February 13, 2017 to file an 28 amended complaint with respect to Defendant Bai. Order at 19. Plaintiffs and Defendant Bai timely entered a stipulation extending the deadline to February 27, 2017. ECF No. 183.

1 In the alternative, should the Court determine that the Order is a final 2 appealable judgment, Plaintiffs would have until February 27, 2017 to file their notice 3 of appeal—the same date as the deadline to file an amended complaint as to 4 Defendant Bai. Accordingly, Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court extend the 5 deadline to file an amended complaint as to Defendant Bai until thirty (30) days after 6 a final ruling on Plaintiffs’ appeal of the Dismissal Order or until the deadline for 7 Plaintiffs to file a notice of appeal regarding the Dismissal Order has passed without 8 Plaintiffs choosing to file such notice. As explained below, granting that extension 9 would enhance judicial efficiency and economy, while resulting in no prejudice to 10 Defendant Bai. By contrast, being required to file an amended complaint as to 11 Defendant Bai at this time would be prejudicial to Plaintiffs.

12 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 6(b) provides that when “by order of court an 13 act is required . . . to be done within a specified time, the court for cause shown may 14 at any time in its discretion . . . order the period enlarged if request therefore is made 15 before the expiration of the period originally prescribed or as extended by previous 16 order.” Fed. R. Civ. Proc. Rule 6(b). “Cause shown” for purposes of Rule 6(b) has 17 been generally interpreted as synonymous with a showing of “good cause,” which is 18 subject to a relaxed judicial standard. See Poe v. Cristina Copper Mines, Inc., 15 19 F.R.D. 85, 88 \(D.C. Del. 1953\). Indeed, requests for extensions of time pursuant to 20 Rule 6(b) may “always” be asked for, and are liberally granted if timely made. See 21 Creedon v. Taubman, 8 F.R.D. 268, 269 (N.D. Ohio 1947).

22 Good cause is present here because Plaintiffs’ request is timely made and an 23 extension will promote judicial economy and efficiency for all parties involved.
 24 Plaintiffs’ intended appeal of the Dismissal Order has three potential outcomes. The 25 Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals could: (i) affirm the Court’s finding that the 26 allegations set forth in the Second Amended Complaint (the “SAC”) do not 27 adequately plead a RICO violation, and that the SAC was appropriately dismissed 28 with prejudice; (ii) affirm the Court’s holding that the allegations were insufficient under Rule 12(b)(6) but reverse the Court’s holding that dismissal with prejudice was appropriate, at which point Plaintiffs could amend their allegations against all Defendants, including Defendant Bai and the other Chinese Defendants (currently being served with the SAC), in one operative amended complaint; or (iii) hold that Plaintiffs’ SAC sufficiently pled a RICO violation, at which point Plaintiffs would continue to try to serve the SAC on Defendant Bai and the other Chinese Defendants through the Hague Convention while the case proceeds against the other Defendants. Accordingly, rather than file and attempt to serve a (potentially unnecessary) amended complaint now as to Defendant Bai and the other Chinese Defendants—which, because the Hague Convention is involved, is a very expensive proposition—while the case as to the other Defendants is in limbo, it serves judicial economy to wait for the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals’ decision and proceed on a uniform basis with regard to all Defendants.

Proceeding in this manner would not prejudice Defendant Bai. First, as things currently stand, Mr. Bai has not yet been served with an operative complaint. Declaration of George E. Mastoris (“Mastoris Decl.”) ¶ 3. Were Plaintiffs required to file a Third Amended Complaint now and if they are successful in serving Mr. Bai in short order, he would have to incur the expense of responding while the appeal is pending. If, on the other hand, the relief requested is granted, Mr. Bai would be free from this case while the appeal runs its course and, depending on how the Ninth Circuit rules, may never have to face any future allegations from Harmoni. Although his counsel will no doubt disagree, that seems significantly better for Mr. Bai. Second, if (as is more likely), it takes a significant amount of time to serve Mr. Bai in China pursuant to the Hague Convention, whether or not an amended complaint is filed now or following the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals’ decision will make no difference as to the case schedule. Based on Plaintiffs’ experience with the foreign defendants in this case, service is likely to take a minimum of 9-10 months (as it is apparent that Mr. Bai does not intend to accept service voluntarily, even though he is

1 now being represented by the same counsel as the U.S. Defendants). Id. ¶ 4.

2 Furthermore, if this request is not granted, Plaintiffs will suffer substantial 3 prejudice in at least two different ways. First, Plaintiffs would be forced to file an 4 amended complaint at this time when it is possible that the Ninth Circuit Court of 5 Appeals finds the allegations as set forth in the Second Amended Complaint are 6 sufficient. Plaintiffs would be forced to incur the expense of serving a new complaint
7 on Defendant Bai pursuant to the Hague Convention in addition to the expenses
8 already incurred in starting the process of serving the Second Amended Complaint 9 against Defendant Bai and the other Defendants in China, a time-intensive and 10 expensive process costing tens of thousands of dollars. Second, if the Ninth Circuit
11 Court of Appeals grants Plaintiffs leave to amend, Plaintiffs could be forced to litigate 12 motions to dismiss in three waves: once against Defendant Bai, once against any 13 reinstated Defendants, and once against other foreign Defendants. In addition to being 14 grossly inefficient, this would impose a very significant burden on Plaintiffs, who 15 have already been driven to the brink of bankruptcy by Defendants' conduct.

16 Moreover, as demonstrated in the accompanying Declaration, the facts in this 17 case are still rapidly developing, demonstrating that Plaintiffs' allegations in the SAC 18 are true and providing support for additional allegations regarding predicate acts and 19 proximate cause. Indeed, this is the main reason why Mr. Bai and his lawyers are so 20 eager to put an end to this action now even when it appears to be against his short-21 term financial interests to do so.

22 For example, Avrum Katz—formerly a defendant in this case—recently filed a 23 letter with the Department of Commerce asking it to reconsider its decision to initiate 24 anti-dumping review proceedings of Zhengzhou Harmoni and confirming that the 25 Defendants in this case engaged in the “fraudulent and misleading scheme” alleged by 26 Harmoni in its SAC. Mastoris Decl., Ex. A at 1. Mr. Katz's letter states that he was 27 “intentionally misled by Mr. Hume about what was really going on” and did not know 28 that, among other things, Mr. Hume was trying to destroy Harmoni and receiving

1 $100,000 from his Chinese clients to seek American farmers to file a review request
2 against Plaintiffs. Id. at 2. Contrary to what Mr. Hume and the other Defendants told 3 the Commerce Department (but again consistent with Plaintiffs’ allegations in the 4 SAC), Mr. Katz also confirms that the “review request against Harmoni came, in 5 substance and form, from Chinese businessman Jack Bai and Wang Ruopeng” (both 6 Defendants named in the SAC) and that “Hume and his Chinese clients used [Katz 7 and Crawford] as pawns in a game [they] did not understand.” Id. at 3.

8 Unsurprisingly, Mr. Crawford and Mr. Hume responded to and denied most 9 (but not all) of Mr. Katz’s claims. Mr. Katz submitted a second, more detailed letter, 10 attaching a number of exhibits confirming his account, including emails between 11 himself and other Defendants regarding the payments they received from Chinese 12 garlic companies in exchange for filing a review request. Mastoris Decl., Ex. B.
13 Further corroboration of his claims (and the allegations in the SAC) came from Ms.
14 Cynthia Ferebee-Medina, former office manager of Hume & Associates LLC, Mr.
15 Hume’s firm and Mr. Katz and Mr. Crawford’s counsel in proceedings before 16 Commerce. In a declaration that was also submitted to Commerce, Ms. Medina 17 provides support for many of Mr. Katz’s allegations, including that Mr. Hume was 18 “using [Mr. Katz and Mr. Crawford] to push the agenda of several Chinese companies 19 that Mr. Hume represented and that are competitors of Harmoni.” Mastoris Decl., Ex.
20 C at p. 15 ¶ 2. Again, and in direct contravention to statements made by Mr. Hume to 21 Commerce, the legal fees he charged in connection with his representation of Mr.
22 Katz and Mr. Crawford in Commerce were apparently paid by Chinese companies.
23 (Ms. Medina also suggests that Defendants’ fees in this case are being paid by those 24 same companies, notwithstanding the fact that the invoices produced were addressed 25 to Mr. Hume). Id. ¶ 7. Finally, Ms. Medina states that she “has reason to believe that 26 Mr. Hume destroyed” electronic correspondence between Defendants Mr. Crawford 27 and Mr. Wang after Defendants’ counsel in this matter attempted to collect them as 28 part of the discovery process (prior to the Dismissal Order). Id. ¶ 8. Mr. Crawford, of 1 course, informed Plaintiffs in his response to their Request For Production No. 4 that 2 no such documents existed, a statement which appears to be false. Mastoris Decl., Ex.

3 D.²

4 Plaintiffs also have suffered brand new (and extremely serious) injuries as a 5 direct result of new fraudulent statements made by Defendants or their proxies. For 6 example, this past fall, U.S. Customs & Border Protection was falsely informed by 7 Defendants or their agents that Harmoni used prison labor to process the garlic it 8 imports to the United States. Mastoris Decl. ¶ 9. As a result, Customs put a hold on 9 Harmoni's shipments of garlic and refused to release many thousands of kilos of 10 garlic for over a month, during which time it sat rotting at the dock. Id. Although 11 those claims were eventually exposed as baseless and the garlic was released by 12 Customs, much of it was by that time spoiled and unsalvageable—directly costing 13 Harmoni hundreds of thousands of dollars in lost profits. Id. In light of these 14 damning facts, which are highly relevant to the allegations in Harmoni's action and 15 continue to develop on an almost daily basis, it is manifestly in the interest of justice
16 to grant Plaintiffs the extension they are seeking. That way, after an appeal is heard, 17 those facts and others can be added to any amended complaint.

18 This request is properly before the Court on an ex parte basis because the 19 earliest regularly noticed Motion would be March 27, 2017, over a month away, while 20 the court-imposed deadline for Plaintiffs to amend the complaint is February 27, 2017.

21 Plaintiffs met and conferred with counsel of record for Defendant Bai, Anthony 22 Lanza and Brodie Smith of Lanza and Smith PLC, via telephone on February 8, 2017 23 and again on February 23, 2017. Mastoris Decl. ¶ 10. Counsel indicated that 24 Defendant Bai does not oppose the request for clarification as to whether an appeal is 25 currently ripe but does oppose the alternative relief (of an extension of time to file an 26 amended complaint until after any ripe appeal has run its course) sought in this

27
28 ² Ms. Medina's declaration does not imply, and Plaintiffs have no reason to believe, that Defendants' attorneys in this case had any knowledge of the alleged destruction of documents; rather, Mr. Hume appears to have been responsible.

Request. Id. Plaintiffs will be serving Defendant Bai's counsel with this Application and supporting papers by e-mail. Defendant Bai shall thus have until the next court day (Friday, February 24) to submit his papers in opposition to this Application. The names, addresses, and telephone numbers of the relevant Defendant's counsel are as follows:

This request is based upon this Ex Parte Application, the Declaration of George E. Mastoris, all pleadings, papers and orders on file in this action, all matters of which this Court may take judicial notice, and such other evidence and argument as the Court may request.
